

Our environmental charter for service providers

We firmly believe that environmental commitment is essential for a sustainable future. Aware of our responsibility as an industrial company, we strive every day to reduce our ecological footprint while providing superior quality products. Our environmental charter illustrates our ambition to minimize the impact of our activities on nature to the greatest extent possible.

Therefore, Amer-Sil commits to the following six actions:

Reduction of our carbon footprint

Reducing our CO2 emissions by improving our production processes, facilities, and transportation

Responsible management of our raw materials

Selecting our raw materials and suppliers based on their environmental impact

Pollution prevention

Preventing soil, air, and water pollution through our treatment plant

Waste management and recycling

Sorting and recycling our industrial and household waste

Innovation and energy transition

Investing in and developing innovative products for the renewable energy market

Engagement et sensibilisation

Training and raising awareness among our employees and partners about good environmental practices

Our environmental charter is part of our approach to compliance with ISO 14001 and ISO 45001 standards, which reinforce our commitment to health, safety and environmental protection. In this context, Amer-Sil asks all of its subcontractors to commit to this approach and to respect it.

Together, we are building a future that is more respectful of our planet.
